Property Stolen from the South.

From the Dayton (Ohio) Empire.]

The New York Journal of Commerce, which some days since made the exposure that in one of the aristocratic churches of that city there is now in use a communion service, which was plundered from a church in the south, recitrates the call upon persons who have in their parlors and churches here, things that were stolen from the south during the war, to send them back. The editor says:

"An old friend of ours, a union man in the south through all the war, told us that his chandeliers were in a certain house in Massachusetts, his piano in another, and various family treasures in another. He had traced them to their positions. We have heard of a southern lady sitting down at a northern table and recognizing silver on that table as her own. We have heard of a lady receiving from an officer a present of jewelry, which she recognized as the jewelry of a southern lady who had been her old schoolmate and friend. Public sentiment needs to be aroused on this subject, and the holders of such goods should be compelled by the indignation of their honest fellow-citizens to send them back."

But a few days since we were assured, by a very respectable and intelligent gentleman, a resident of New Haven, Conn., that there are now hanging on the walls of "Beast" Butler, at Lowell, two magnificent pictures—"Christ on the Cross" and "Mary at the Sepulchre," we think he stated—painted, evidently, by some great masters, which are certainly of $1000 value each. They were plundered from one of the elegant mansions of New Orleans—the mansion of one of the wealthiest gentlemen of the south—which Butler confiscated and appropriated to headquarters purposes, and as a receptacle of stolen goods. Our informant was a correspondent at New Orleans when these pictures were shipped, and saw them on the vessel in the harbor.

"Brick" Pomeroy on Slavery.

We clip the following forcible language from the La Crosse Democrat:

The Southern Democratic press of the northwest worked for the Times. We have told men to subscribe for it rather than for our paper, for that was a city paper, and we had not facilities for news we had not got for poverty and wretchedness. The Chatfield Democrat [illegible] Journal, [illegible]

Another Story from Mexico.

Maximilian's "minister of foreign affairs" has issued an address to the people of Mexico. It recites the arrival of Maximilian in Mexico and the labors for the restoration of order, and announces the speedy withdrawal of the French, the recommencement of civil war, and the present dangerous condition of the country in the present emergency. It says the emperor has charged his ministry with the duty of convening a National congress without any delay. Council is now engaged preparing a basis upon which this sovereign council will be called together.

The address concludes with the following important sentence in reference to the relations between the French and the emperor: "His majesty the emperor has received within the few days past the most explicit assurance from Marshal Bazaine, and which is in conformity with the commands of his sovereign, Napoleon, to co-operate with him in the interest of order and peace, and give his majesty's government assistance in carrying out their plans, as long as the French troops remain in the national territory."

The tribunal of correctional police has been occupied with the trial of a case of libel—the king of Prussia versus the Memorial Diplomatique. The journal charged the monarch with having, during the war in Bohemia, stolen a flock of fine merino sheep belonging to a private person, and with having also appropriated a pair of carriage horses in a similar fashion. The king has not, however, gained much by his prosecution of the journal. M. Dufaure, who defended, seized the opportunity of saying things ten times sharper against Prussia than had ever been said in print, and M. Lachaud, who prosecuted, really did as much to defend the accused as their own advocate. It was understood that a conviction was absolutely necessary, so that all the prisoners were found guilty. The sentences were, however, so extremely light that the result of the trial is regarded as a triumph for the press. Public feeling appears to run very strongly against Prussia; every hit made by M. Dufaure in his defense was applauded so much that the president threatened several times to have the court cleared unless better order were preserved.

Elastic Stitch and Lock Stitch

SEWING MACHINES!

Why Grover & Baker's Machine is Best

1. It is more simple, durable, and less liable to get out of order than others.
2. It sews on ordinary spools, and no re-winding or change of thread is necessary.
3. It sews with equal facility all fabrics, the most delicate and the heaviest, and with all kinds of thread, silk, cotton, or linen.
4. Its seam is so strong and elastic that it never breaks, even on the bias.
5. It fastens both ends of the seam by its own operation.
6. The seam, though cut at every stitch, remains firm, and neither runs or ravels in its wear.
7. Its seam is more plump and beautiful, and retains its plumpness after washing better than any other.
8. It can be re-moved in altering garment, after proper inspection, without picking or cutting threads.
9. We vary and vary the tensions upon the threads, necessary in other machines, is unnecessary in this. The tension being once adjusted by the Grover & Baker Machine, any amount of sewing may be done without change.
10. It makes beautiful embroidery without any change in arrangement, simply by re-setting threads of suitable tension and colors for the purpose. It is the only machine that both embroiders and sews perfectly.

The attention of Tailors, Manufacturers of Clothing, Boots and Shoes, Carriage Trimmers, and all others requiring the best and most effective Lock-stitch Machines, is invited to our new Shuttle Machine, especially adapted to Manufacturing purposes.

NEW ENGLAND SELF-SUFFICIENCY.

Reading the lucubrations inspired by the recent anniversary of the landing of the "Pilgrim Fathers" at Plymouth, one must be struck with the enormous distension to which New England ideas have blown, in connection with the part that section has played in founding and building up the republic of the United States. A popular metropolitan journal in New York, with supreme assurance, designates the day in question as "Forefather's Day," and proceeds in the course of an elaborate article under that head, to assign to the "Pilgrim Fathers" the credit of founding this great Republic itself, and not of merely a small section of it—as was really the case.

The great mass of the people of the United States are not of the puritan blood, and have not been animated by puritan or Massachusetts ideas. Even the abolition of slavery was not the result of the precepts or the practice and example of these very pilgrim fathers and their immediate descendants, who were not only slave owners but slave traders. Neither is it true that these men were the founders of civil and religious liberty in this country; but, as might be demonstrated, they were found stringently intolerant, and persecuted and expelled from their several communities all who were of a different creed. Nor are their descendants of the present day really in favor of genuine civil and religious liberty, for at this time the typical New Englander is thoroughly intolerant of all views of church and state that do not accord with his own; and he does not hesitate to declare his creed to be alone worthy, alone in keeping with the spirit and progress of the age, and alone fit to dominate. This assumption meets us at all points of the compass, and in the very air we breathe, notwithstanding the whole history of the country, in peace and in war, signally refutes it. Notwithstanding that New England leaders were not able to conduct the war of the revolution of 1776; that New England statesmen did not mould the constitution of the union, nor guide in the cabinet of the government until 1861; that New England statesmen and people, with their characteristic shortsighted, insular sectional policy, were found in bitter opposition to the acquisition of Louisiana and Florida, and of that vast domain, the possession of which gave us the Mississippi river throughout its course; events to which are mainly due the wondrous prosperity and development of the country, and not to the prevalence of New England ideas and their peculiar notions, New England and her people opposed the war of 1812, and carefully abstained from any distinguished or material part in it—a war that gave such development to the naval power of the country, and otherwise enhanced the influence of the United States. New England was arrayed in solid, factious and rabid opposition to the annexation of Texas, and to the war with Mexico, from which came the accession of California and all the inestimable grand results which have followed in the train of that acquisition.

The fact is this country has been extended to its present proportions, has thriven and prospered, and its immense material capacities been developed, despite the purblind, crotchety, narrow-minded views and range of New England statesmanship; and every substantial step taken towards greatness, territorially or otherwise, by the people, has been made in antagonism to the peculiar notions dominant in New England, and has called down the wrathful denunciations of the great mass of the New England patriots.

And last but not least, we beg those self-trumpeters of New England to look at themselves as reflected in the historical mirror of the civil war. Will they find the face of a single really conspicuous captain by sea or land, reflected there? GRANT was no New England breed in his veins, nor MEADE, nor THOMAS, nor SHERMAN, but one (SEDGWICK) of their federal corps, or even divisional commanders of any considerable reputation hails from this favored section. SHERMAN'S father, it is true, was born in Connecticut, but went to the west and settled in a community where other ideas prevailed than those peculiar to New England. His distinguished son grew up the ward of a southern born man, and no one is less indoctrinated this day with the notions of Massachusetts than WILLIAM TECUMSEH SHERMAN. BANKS, BUTLER and Memphis DANA and WASHBURNE are the typical generals of New England. Look at an army register and see the small show of general officers of any sort who were of New England birth, and the fewer yet appointed from the six New England states.

FARAGUT their great naval commander and DUPONT their other distinguished man in that branch, of the service, are of other origin than New England, as were the main part of the distinguished naval men of the war of 1812.

In their sphere, a purely material one, the New England states have unquestionably played a valuable part in the development of the republic, as well as an excessively mischievous one. If we have chosen this morning to expose at length the latter, it is because New England people are becoming insufferable throughout the land for their fathomless self-sufficiency, and for their disposition to meddle with and control all human affairs, domestic, social, political, national and international.

THE GROWTH OF ATLANTA.

The following, from the Atlanta New Era, shows how quickly the southern people can repair the ravages of war. If there was a place on the continent that was exposed to it in all its horrors, it was Atlanta; the object of the fiercest battles, and the central disputed point for two mighty armies. The New Era says:

"The unprecedented growth of Atlanta is the wonder of all who visit it. Our advancement is almost incredible. The people have quit the cesspool of politics, and are giving their undivided attention to more substantial and honorable matters, to-wit: The building up of a great and flourishing city. Merchants, mechanics, physicians, lawyers, young men and old, are all working unitedly and faithfully for this important and desirable end. We have resolved to build up a first class city in every particular, and no power short of the Great Ruler of Events can prevent it. In five years at the furthest Atlanta will be to the south what St. Louis is to the mighty west."

The Indian Massacre in Dacotah.

A later dispatch from Fort Laramie says the recent massacre of United States troops by Indians did not occur near the old Fort Kearney, but in the vicinity of Fort Philip Kearny, Dacotah territory. The latter is situated at the fork of the two piney creeks, in the center of the mountain district of the military department of the Platte, and in the heart of the region occupied by the hostile tribes, the Sioux and the Cheyennes. Its defense consists of a well made stockade of timber, pierced with loop-holes for musketry. At two of the corners were block houses of timber logs, eighteen inches in diameter. It is thought that the post was captured by treachery, as the force there should have been able to stand a siege, and it seems hardly possible that it could have been captured by Indian assault. On the other hand, the savages have so constantly manifested their hostility that it is difficult to see how the troops could have been beguiled into any relaxation of vigilance.

Henry Stock.

It is stated that at the recent New York Central railroad election, Le Grand Lockwood voted on $4,000,000 of stock; Henry Keep on $3,500,000, and Cornelius Vanderbilt on $2,000,000—all standing on the books of the company in their own names.

For the Appeal.

IN MEMORIAM.

[BENJAMIN F. DILL obit, January 4, 1866—one year ago, soon after the APPEAL was in successful operation.]

Enshrined in memory is the name of DILL,
A man of honest truth and earnestness,
Whose acts of virtue would a volume fill—
Who was the Sampson of the Southern press:
Whose heart was soft, though of strong, iron will,
Soft to relieve the sad plaints of distress;
But impursuit of purpose, through the mill
He never shrank but was invincible.

In all high attributes, he was a man—
Loving all human kind, and hating none—
A patriot—helped to carry out the plan
Which should have made our Southern people one;
Through dangerous paths his daily current ran
Cheering the army with brave deeds were done;
But to his dear old home at length he came,
And once more opened the APPEAL its "orriflamme."

Ah who shall say how sorrowful the hour
When hopes had culminated in success,
And judgment had exhibited the power
To spread a sunshine's halo on the press;
When no cloud on the horizon seemed to lower,
And bright fruition enter'd the bless,
The cold, relentless arrow reached his heart,
And tore him from love, home, friends, all, apart!

Who does not recollect his kindly smile,
His soft, bland manners—unobtrusiveness—
His way of business-habit all the while,
His dignified demeanor and address?
With energy united by care and toil,
He was the spirit of the southern press:
And though our eyes with tears of sorrow fill,
With a sad joy we cherish memories of DILL.

JAMES B. MARSHALL.

MEMPHIS, January 3, 1867.

THE SHADOW OF THE DESPOTISM THAT NEVER CAME.

There is a fellow up at Nashville, connected with the radical press, who never tells the truth except by accident, and those accidents are usually the result of his ignorance or of his inordinate vanity. We present a short extract in which he tells, "by indirection," much truth—which he has neither the honesty of purpose to intend, nor the wit to perceive:

We declare, and all candid men will confirm, indorse and approve the declaration, that Gov. Brownlow's administration is the soul of mercy and magnanimous toleration compared with the rule of Gov. Harris, and the bloodier despotism foreshadowed by the declarations of the rebel leaders under the malign star of Confederate victory.

Whew! How beautiful the close of this magnificent sentence! He must have found his peculiar "style by reading the productions of such distinguished literati as Josh. BILLINGS and BILL ARP. We have no doubt all of our people will agree with him that the administration of "governor" BROWNLOW "is the soul of mercy and magnanimous toleration," but there may be some little diffidence of opinion as to the "bloodier despotism foreshadowed by the declarations of the rebel leaders under the malign star of Confederate victory." This last part of his sentence, if it means anything when translated into the language of common sense, admits that the rule of the saintly BROWNLOW is a despotism by comparing it with "the bloodier despotism foreshadowed," but he is unable to find anything more substantial, under Confederate rule, to which to like it, than the shadow of a despotism which never made its appearance save to the distempered imaginations of such renegade southerners as the writer of the paragraph referred to. Impudence and ignorance are inseparable companions in the formation of such characters as the "Southern Loyalist." Such fellows, having nothing in common with intelligent and respectable people, very naturally find a despotism in what would be the perfection of freedom to others. The constitutional thief considers society a proper subject for his depredations, and all regulations at war with his desires and natural inclinations are put down as so many encroachments upon his rights, and those persons who oppose his attempts, as so many despots.

TENNESSEE NEWS.

Snow fell at Chattanooga on Christmas day, and the Union says the dying year was shrouded with a "winding sheet" of more than earthly purity.

We learn from the Chattanooga American and Union that a great amount of destitution prevails at that place, and urges that some immediate steps be taken to relieve the suffering poor.

John R Henry, of Knoxville, has been appointed state treasurer vice R. L. Stanford, resigned. Mr. Henry has given bond and entered on the performance of his duties. He is an old citizen of Knoxville, and held a responsible position in the United States treasury department there during the military occupation of the state.

By reference to the following announcement by Col. Rosson, chairman of the legislative committees, it will be seen that the special committees therein named will hold meetings on the 7th and 9th of this month:

The senate's special committee of investigation of the M. C. & L. railroad are requested to meet at the capitol on Monday the 7th of January, 1867, and the parties interested are requested to be present.

The special committee on the school fund and the senate's standing committee on finance and ways and means, will meet at the capitol on Wednesday the 9th of January, 1867.

W. ROSSON, Chairman.

On Monday evening last John L. Jones was run over by a train of cars on the track of the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, near Broad street, in Nashville, and instantly killed. A special train had come in from Chattanooga and was being backed up by the switch engine to be placed upon another track, when one of the box cars struck the unfortunate man, knocking him down, and the wheels passing over his right ancle, cutting off the foot and crushing the left leg to the upper part of the thigh into complete fragments.

A Story of the Atlantic Telegraph.

The London Glowworm says: "The following story, for the truth of which we are in a position to vouch, is worth repetition: About three weeks since a telegram was sent from Horse Guards to the commander-in-chief in Canada, suggesting that if a regiment could possibly be spared, the Sixth Foot should be despatched to Jamaica on the arrival of the One Hundredth regiment, which was on its way to the colony. No answer being received, a week later a second telegram was sent, at a cost of £56, asking if the first message had reached its destination. It was naturally supposed that the cable was to blame, and that the fault lay somewhere between this country and Newfoundland. It appears, however, that the telegraph clerk at the office at Quebec has two flies, one of which is used for messages as they are received, and the other for those dispatched and done with. The Horse Guards' telegram arrived safely within a couple of hundred yards of its destination, but there it rested, for the clerk at Quebec put it on the wrong file, where it was found as a dispatched message on the arrival of the inquiry from England. The government has very properly called upon the telegraph company to refund the amount paid for the second telegram. We may add that the Canadian authorities have considered it inexpedient to allow the Sixth Foot to leave, notwithstanding the reinforcements which have now reached Quebec."

New York Fast Hotel Life.

The New York correspondent of the New Haven Register says:

"Any poor d—l that cannot pay $5 per day, and to go the attic and be colonized on a camp bedstead, had better stay away from our city hotels, or marry a rich widow and pay $75 per day for first class accommodations. There are not less than nineteen marriageable misses of 'great expectations' at the —— hotel, and the sphynx that gives me the on dits of that highfalutin locality says there are seven war widows whose fashionable habiliments of woe combine a military and a graveyard grenadier about the grade of a first lieutenant, who hold themselves at a quarter of a million each, legal tender. Of course an opportunity so golden meets with numerous supporters. Here you meet all sorts of conditions of people. Fast young bloods and blase old ones, widows that ought to be wives, and wives that ought to be widows, Fiora McFlimseys, petroleum and shoddy and highfalutin, with as many grades as there were formerly Irish kings in a borough, and all living underground (before the war.)

The Richmond Dispatch says that the owner of the farm known as Dutch Gap, finding that the island known as Butler's canal could not conveniently be put to use without some means of communication with the main land, is filling up one end of the canal, in order to create a causeway, and the canal will soon be among the things that were, providing the people of Richmond do not take steps to secure the privilege of shortening the navigation of the James river several miles, which object the proprietor of the land desires to hasten.

[UNITED STATES AND EUROPEAN NEWS ASSOCIATION REPORTS.]

Night Dispatches.

WASHINGTON, January 3.—Bundy, of Iowa, introduced in the house to-day, a joint resolution for the establishment of four territorial governments within the "so-called" state of Texas. It says:

WHEREAS, By a joint resolution approved March 1, 1845, that district heretofore known as the state of Texas was admitted into the union and wrongfully permitted to retain in her own right as the said state, all the unsettled lands within the entire limits of the territory thereof, consisting of 237,000 square miles, all of which were acquired by common treasure, sacrifice and blood of the people of the whole union; and

Whereas, The people inhabiting said territory, and occupying said lands, joined the inhabitants of other insurrectionary districts waging war against the government, and people of the United States, thereby forfeiting their political rights as citizens of the states of the union, and destroying the practical relations of said state of Texas with the government of the United States, to the extent that all the people of said state by Texas became and remain forfeited and lost to them, by reason of their own acts of treason and rebellion as aforesaid; and

Whereas, The people and the public authorities have been and still are disposing of the public lands remaining unsettled therein, not only in a reckless and improvident manner, but to persons who have been and still are disloyal to the government of the United States, and as reward for treason against the same; and

Whereas, The people and public authorities of said district, in defiance of all law, municipal and divine, have been and are still committing acts of violence and outrage, particularly upon the [illegible] men within the borders; and

Whereas, The said district of Texas has been and is now the resort and refuge of lawless and desperate characters and criminals, so that the very name by which that country is recognized and named throughout all lands is suggestive of the penal colony of the world; he name and history [illegible] nothing little else than blood shed, ingratitude, violence and wrong, therefore that the political powers and public domain thereof may not strengthen the hands and advance the purposes of those who have been and are now the most active, untiring and malignant leaders of disunity and the union of the states, and with a view to the speedy settlement of the entire region of said district, with a loyal and industrious people, and for the purpose of establishing justice, and for the enacting and execution of the laws, maintaining order and securing tranquility therein; therefore be it

Resolved, That the said district heretofore known as the state of Texas be divided into four territories with suitable governments providing therefor respectively as follows, viz: The northern division, of portion thereof, shall be known as the territory of Brazoria, and consist of said district north of the 32d parallel north latitude; the western division, or portion thereof, called the territory of Brazos, with the river Brazos as the western boundary, and to be bounded on the east by Guadalupe river to its intersection with the 30th parallel north latitude, and thence by a right line to the intersection of the 32d parallel north latitude, with the 24th meridian degree, longitude west from Washington; the eastern division to be called the territory of Sabine, having the river of that name as its eastern boundary, and to be bounded on the west by a line drawn from the southwest extremity of Galveston island at low water to the intersection of the 32d section, north latitude, with the 24th degree, longitude west from Washington. The middle division shall be called the territory of Lincoln, and be bounded on the east and west by the territories of Brazos and Sabine, and the last three mentioned territories to be bounded north by the said territory of Brazoria, and having the gulf of Mexico on the south and southeast; and that when any of said territories have sufficient population to entitle them to be represented in the congress of the United States—of not less than 125,000 persons—and shall by a convention duly called for that purpose composed of delegates voted for and elected by loyal male persons of twenty years and upward having resided in the territory six months, and have not been convicted of infamous crimes, or lunatics or paupers, shall adopt a republican, republican form, and the constitutional amendment proposed by the 39th congress at its first session thereof, shall be eligible to admission into the union, and upon the election of members of congress who can duly qualify shall be admitted into the union upon an equal with the other states thereof. The civil government of said territories shall be assimilated to the same governments, and laws of other territories of the union, and until such governments are provided, the government and laws of Texas shall remain in force [illegible] and therefore made in Texas by [illegible] authorities to disloyal persons of the states of the government of the United States, shall be null and void, and the right of pre-emption to any public land therein, and under the laws thereof, shall not inure to the benefit of any person or persons.

Stanton has communicated Grant's letter regarding the increase of the army for the protection of the overland route. He doubts the sufficiency of the additional force until the peace army fills up, and it becomes practicable to withdraw the troops from the south, which will then be amply sufficient, and no force would prevent occasional murder. Grant concludes: I would not recommend any increase to the present regular army.

The Arkansas delegation [illegible] had an interview with the president to-day, which they found cordial and communicative. He expressed himself highly pleased with their mission, and urged them to communicate freely with the representatives and senators. They left him again to-morrow, when they will confer with members of the cabinet and with Grant. The delegation has no proposition to make, nor are they authorized to accept any. Their chief object while from home is fixing the political policy, so to counteract by personal assurances, the evil influence of the Fort Smith mass meeting of loyalists, and to present to those who are ruling events a fair and candid view of Arkansas politics.

It is now understood that A. Johnson's plan of operations is to have a committee appointed to investigate the official acts of the president. The committee will report on the facts and offer articles of impeachment, when it will require a two-third vote of the house to bring the president before the bar of the senate.

Stevens' speech to-day will not appear in to-morrow's Globe. Its violence was so great that his friends have persuaded him to revise it.

The interest now due and in course of payment is $12,200,000, instead of $10,000,000 as heretofore reported.

It is understood that Fred. Seward has gone to the Don to purchase the bay of Jamaica, in Hayti.

The congressional excursion party have returned.

The internal revenue receipts for the past six months have been $106,402,539 86, against $175,556,458 02 for the same time in 1865.

House—Stevens, in the course of his debate to-day, said he did not consider that the adoption of the constitutional amendment of itself should entitle the south to representation. Impartial suffrage was disagreeable. The landing is over crowded with cotton and other produce. The river is rising. Arrivals—Wild Waggoner from Louisville. Departed—John H. Groesbeck for Cincinnati.

A soldier named C. Ulein, of the 17th regulars, was dangerously cut in the throat to-day, by a razor in the hands of a private in the same command. The tragedy occurred at Sheridan's headquarters.

The value of foreign wines seized during the past year by the United States treasury agent at this port, and for which fifty suits are now pending in the United States district court between the shippers and the government, amounts to nearly $400,000.

The prices for real estate in Louisiana are improving in spite of the fact that there has been and still are a great many suits for the foreclosing of mortgages and collection of claims. In most cases the property is bringing its full value, when one year ago hardly one-fifth of it could be got on forced sales.

WILMINGTON, DEL., January 3.—The governor in his message, says that sale into slavery as a punishment has a most salutary restraint against crime. He doubts the wisdom of the civil rights bill, and will not shrink from enforcing the state laws which are not adjudged by competent authority as being unconstitutional. In speaking of the amendment he says, "Whatever may have been the expectation or object of congress, its rejection is demanded alike by every consideration of justice, patriotism and humanity."

LOUISVILLE, January 3.—A company of the 5th United States cavalry went down to New Orleans to-day on steamer Alice.

Gen. Breslin has received instructions from Gen. Sheridan to recruit the 41st United States infantry, and the work has been commenced.

There are nearly two million dollars in the state treasury.

No quorum in the legislature to-day.

W. W. Morris & Co.'s notion store was burned this evening; loss fifteen thousand; covered by insurance. Smith & Wyleroot, photographers, second story, lost several hundred dollars.

Louisville navigation still suspended; heavy ice still running; river falling rapidly, five feet on falls; canal closed with ice; no arrivals or departures.

CALAIS, January 3.—The steamship Bremen sailed to-day for New York. Among her passengers are some of the American yachtmen. The snow storm prevented her departure yesterday.

Noon Dispatches.

WASHINGTON, January 2.—The December statement of the public debt will be ready for publication until the 5th or 6th inst. It is understood that over one million dollars were paid last month to southern claimants for cotton captured and confiscated during the war, and claimed as being illegally taken. There have been $50,000 in gold in the treasury.

The tariff bill, which is to be reported by the finance committee of the senate, will probably be adopted as a substitute for the house bill passed last session. The senate committee is almost unanimous in favor of the new bill. The accompanying report of Commissioner Wells will correct the impression as to the false idea afloat in regard to the bill. It is not a free trade bill, but on the contrary the bill is protective, but discriminating in regard to protection with a view to the production of revenue and the fostering of the industrial interests. It has been prepared after a patient investigation and examination of all the facts in reference to the industrial interests of the country, not only for the purpose of furnishing a revenue, but for the encouragement of productions and manufactures, with a due regard to the masses of consumers.

The report of the commissioner of revenue, which accompanies this bill, commences with a review of the internal revenue system, the custom system, and the wants and interests of the country, as preliminary to an examination of the tariff. It adopts, as the basis of recognition, a general demand for an increase of the tariff, and inquires as to the cause of that demand. This demand is not simply for a revenue, because the existing tariff is more productive than any we have had, but it must be based upon the encouragement of the industry of the country.

The report then proceeds to a general survey of the industrial interests, particularly during the last year, and generally for the four last years, pointing out the leading elements of prosperity. The disturbing element of the war and its concomitants are elaborately discussed, and the results pointed out to be an extraordinary increase in the prices of labor and commodities as shown by the interesting data derived from all sections of the country and covering almost every industrial pursuit. The effects of this advance upon industry, trade, commerce and navigation, are set forth in detail, and the facts in this report are startling [illegible] such as the commercial [illegible]

The following [illegible] a statement of these results: The [illegible] presents an analysis of the causes by which this state of things was produced, and takes the ground that the true remedy for the difficulties under which the country labors is to be sought in the removal of the causes themselves rather than in an excessive increase of tariff and volume of the currency.

The commissioner recognizes the fact that during the prevalence of a state of affairs, consequent upon the late war, temporary measures of relief are necessary, and recommends a partial increase of the present tariff to an extent not approximating that proposed in the house bill now under consideration.

The report contains an elaborate examination of each of the leading industries of the country, cotton, wool, iron, coal, salt, etc., with tables showing the effect of high prices on these articles. In many cases specific duties are substituted and substituted for ad valorem duties.

The bill accompanying this report contains seventy-six pages. It presents the present tariff rates proposed by the bill and those of the committee [illegible] paragraphs, as an evidence of the particularity with which the bill was drawn. In the single [illegible] there are over three [illegible] and articles named.

An Editor in Petticoats.

A Kentucky editor was present at a masquerade ball in Edgefield a few nights since, and having donned a liberal portion of the wardrobe of the wife of a friend, for a time created quite a sensation among the susceptible bipeds of the male persuasion. Some of the ladies recognized part of the borrowed apparel, and at once imagined they saw, in spite of the disguise, the husband of the real owner of the expansive dry goods. They saluted him with, "Oh, we know you! We know your wife's breast pin—and that dress! You're discovered and you needn't try to disemble!" The editor immediately subsided, doffed his strange habiliments, and in a short time was seated at the table, looking as meek as if nothing had occurred to mar the tranquility of his cogitations. Of course the astute ladies who thought they had made a discovery, were immensely amused at seeing the long-drawn countenance of a stranger instead that of the genial face of the husband of the owner of the crinoline. The unfortunate disguised left for home next morning on an early express train.—Nashville Banner.

THE HANLONS.—The [illegible] combination gives them a [illegible] ance in this city to-night being [illegible] for Montgomery, Ala. During [illegible] stay here they have won many friends by their gentlemanly bearing, and as performers they surely have no superiors anywhere. All who have not seen them should not let this last opportunity escape, as they may never be able to witness such rare performers again. Gentlemen desirous of securing seats for their ladies, should call at the box office of the theater at 10 o'clock this morning.

THE TRAVELS OF A YOUNGSTER.—A youngster, about thirteen years old, named Eli. Newton, some weeks ag left his home in Cincinnati and started down the river on an exploring expedition. His people became alarmed at his absence and started after him. Yesterday morning a photograph was left at the stationhouse with the offer of $25 for information leading to his whereabouts. During the day, however, the young gentleman passed up on a steamer. It seems he had gone as far as New Orleans, where he became homesick the first day, and started back for his mother's arms.

INTERESTING POLICE ITEMS.—It appears from the report of Capt. P. S. Simons, of the lower police district, that his force consists of two sergeants, two acting sergeants, two turnkeys, two clerks, and forty-three patrolmen. This force is about equally divided for day and night duty. The following hand some showing of work done with this force is made: Amount of stolen property recovered during July $1876, August $1122, September $1117, October $1048, November $2775 and December $1134—total amount $9057. Number of arrests made in July 569, August 611, September 458, October 478, November 433, December 491—total 3032. Amount of fines collected during July $2455, August $3075, September $2495, October $3450, November $3060, December $2895—total $17,430 The records shows that among the 1051 persons arrested, as shown above, 353 were state cases, and no action acted upon by the recorder, leaving a balance of arrests for city offenses of 2678.

BEAT A WOMAN.—A fellow named Lewis Wright was yesterday arrested, charged with having whipped a woman with a revolver. The man who would the bold enough to do such a brave deed is a fit associate for a vile cotton-mouth, and should be treated as such.

DEAD.—We have been informed that Dan. Moran, who was shot some time ago by ex-Alderman Burke, died at the hospital yesterday.

THE TEMPERANCE FAIR.

FOURTH NIGHT—UNRIVALED SUCCESS.

How the Saddle, Watch and Chair are Going.

The fair at the Stillman hall for the benefit of the Sons of Temperance progresses finely. Every one enjoys the evening who goes, and no one complains of extortion on the part of the ladies, or of the annoyance of a continued request to take chance in some article, as is generally the case at fairs. The tables are well filled with nice things, the place of everything sold being immediately supplied. Many new features are introduced every evening, among which are elegant portraits of Gens. R. E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson, to be raffled as soon as ten chances are taken at $3 per chance. The refreshment table, kept by Mrs. Sharp, has been enlarged, and we are glad to see is receiving much better patronage. Quite a variety of pretty things have been added to the Misses Jackson's table, and three of the prettiest creatures that ever had the pleasure of wearing a waterfall, trals of mice, attract the attention of every gallant who come inside the hall to that table. We are sorry to say, however, that some of the fairest (the word is ambiguous) of the fair were absent last night, and we must say our heart went pit-apat, (we mean somebody else's—ours was lost), and our face assumed a melancholy air when we missed the beautiful blonde, but the brunette consoled us and we kept on with our knitting. We noticed many others looking disappointed, but they first entered the room, and seeing that galaxy of beauty, grace and wit they very soon forgot those they didn't see, and we often heard the little verse, from the pen of some "inglorious Milton" quoted to a fair damsel, the exact words being used of course, we give the verse, assuring our readers that it is a perfect gem, "in its way," and the name of its author should be handed down as a grateful posterity. Here it is, verbatim et literatim:

"—he charmed my bayish fancy,
Ran wild of my manly brain;
She's the extract of molasses—
She's the ja ou sugar o' me."

Taking into consideration the fact that somebody wasn't there, and our consequent bereavement, we have never enjoyed ourself better than we did last night at the fair. Enjoyment was the prevailing determination, in fact, and every one seemed to be afflicted like way. The Sons of Temperance, for whose benefit the fair was gotten up, are responding much more liberally than was to be expected, and we are glad to see that the ladies evince very little disposition to make heavy demands upon them as they have been devoting so much of their time already to its accomplishment the great end for which they started out, and so much could not be expected of them in a pecuniary way as from those who have lent no assistance in getting the fair started. The "Sons of Temperance, or any other man," however, can well afford to consider themselves amply compensated for their expenditures by the approving smiles of beauty, and they seem to have reached the very acme of bliss when promenading around the hall, enjoying a pleasant tete-a-tete with one of the dear little angels, of which the fair can boast at least twenty every evening, as Rosamond or Venus. Upon the whole, the fair goes bravely on, and instances of great good it has already accomplished, in connection with the society, in other than a pecuniary way. The cause is a good one, and we hope they may thrive. The mess board is to be raffled to-night, and many of the handsome things on which many will be presented for the The contest for saddle goes on bravely, major still leading ahead: Mathes will probably [illegible] the cane. Every one interested should go and vote for one or other.

A BURGLAR MORTALLY WOUNDED. A negro man named John Wilkes was mortally wounded in a fracas with another negro, some four miles from town, on Wednesday evening last, and died about 1 o'clock he a notorious burglar. Officer Hasting received the information that Wilkes was concealed at the place mentioned, and started to arrest the criminal. He found Wilkes rather badly cut up from several wounds he had received while entering houses, one of the worst being a plaid wound received while Wilkes was trying to enter the drug store of A. Reukert, some few weeks ago. When the officer told him what he had come for, the negro replied that he was going to die he might as well confess that he had committed many burglaries during the past year. He broke into a Beal street clothing store about three months since, securing a lot of clothing. Entered a house on Court's, in Chelsea, of clothing, mirror, last month. Entered a house on Commerce street six weeks since and helped himself to things lying around loose. Bored a hole through the floor of the [illegible] and got a lot of [illegible] tion store, got a carpet, and left on the approach of one of the inmates. He states that he had no accomplice, and sold the property he stole very easily. He was frequently driven off by dogs, and once another pair of hinds from pistol balls during his burglarious career. He is a desperate character, and received a pavonet wound in the [illegible] while fighting [illegible] been the cause of his career [illegible] interfered.

MISTAKEN.—We spoke of the disappointment [illegible] who went to hear Dr. S. H. Fo[illegible] each on Sunday afternoon last, we [illegible] not mean to cast any reflection upon the punctuality of that gentleman [illegible] have known Dr. Ford a long [illegible] and have always known him a more high-toned gentleman, or more consistent Christian! We have been informed by [illegible] one of the Sons of Temperance that they attached no blame whatever to that gentleman, as he was hindered from [illegible] by some business, duties, or order of some kind, who held their meetings in the church on Sundays afternoon. We wish to say to those who are not acquainted with the fact, however, that Dr. Ford was at the church at the appointed hour with the manuscript of his Address which had been carefully prepared. Neither we or the Sons of Temperance cherish any ill-feeling toward Dr. Ford, and we hope he will not feel unkindly toward us or the order.

NEW GAS COMPANY.—Our citizens will be glad to learn that the city is being supplied with work in the new gas company, and we wish the new concern every success. The present gas company is the poorest excuse for one to be found in America. Not only our stores, but our streets are wretchedly darkened. We have long fronted one of the city to the other and the street lamps did not give a glimmer as big as the light of a common tallow candle. Our people have put up with enough of this, and the desire is general for the coming of the new company. Many of our citizens at present are leaning off in preference to the miserable gas which this company gives.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION.—Impositions of any kind are obnoxious, and especially are they so when they embrace a whole community. One of these has come to our notice, and we ask the city merchants to answer. We are reliably informed that steamboats are furnished with coal at our landings for fifty-five cents per barrel, while our citizens are charged $1 50 per barrel. Now this is one of the grandest impositions in our midst, and measures should be taken to put a stop to it. We call upon the good merchants to explain why they make this difference between steamboats and the city.

BARGAINS in dry goods at Menken Bros.

LIBEL SUIT.—The Commercial and Argus newspaper has been sued in the sum of $3500 damages by L. Kaliuski, for remarks made by that sheet in reference to the late fire. Mr. Kaliuski is at present being examined, charged with incendiarism.

A LITTLE MORE LIGHT.—The party who lights the street lamps should be out a little earlier. To be sure the gas gives out little light, but during dark nights people want something to steer by, and as they get [illegible] for the Job let the have the gas lights lit up according to time.

CONTINUED.—The examination of L. Kaliuski and L. Burcham, for incendiarism, was commenced yesterday before Squire Creighton. Several witness were introduced, and the case was continued till this morning.

BASE BALL.—At a recent meeting of the Eagle base ball club the following officers were elected: D. T. Fogerty, president; W. D. Greeh, vice-president; R. E. League, secretary; Joseph Nuttzel, treasurer; Dl. Miller and Wm. Smither, field captains.

NEW MEMPHIS THEATER.—The stock company are doing wonderfully well at this favorite place of amusement and drawing very appreciative and fashionable houses. The leading feature of the programme this evening is the beautiful play by Mrs. Lovell of, Ingomar, to be followed by a laughable farce.

Removal.—Drs. Mortimore & Payne have removed their office from the Commercial Hotel to the Worsham House, Room No. 23, (the one occupied by Dr. Mortimore the past four years), where all, who desire to, can consult them and procure treatment.

Special attention given to all the various forms of chronic diseases, especially Disease of the Lung and Throat, Disease of the Heart, Liver, Spleen, Kidneys and Spine, Dispepsia, Chronic Diseases of the Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Neuralgia and, Nervous affections; all the Affective forms of Female Diseases; also all diseases having origin in impurities of the blood and vital fluids.

Office hours from 8 o'clock a.m. until 6 o'clock p.m. daily. May 20tf V

CARRIER'S ADDRESS

FOR THE

MEMPHIS APPEAL,

For January 1, 1867.

Full sev'n-and-twenty years to-day
Since the APPEAL first saw the light;
From whence, in peace or to the fray,
It always battled for the right;
Its cause is now, what it was then—
To fight for principles, not men.

The OLD APPEAL is still the same;
Its flag kisses the Southern sky;
There's magic in its very name
That thrills the soul by every tie.
It is the sentry on the tower,
To give the note when danger is lower.

Let others vaunt, and whine, and fret,
Its course is still to signify;
They'll find life's in the Old sheet yet,
For it was never dead to die;
For now, as in its early youth,
Where'er it leads it follows Truth.

Its policy is e'en the same;
It speaks it with a clarion mouth;
Its public ink-ed with that bright lame
That sheds its lustre o'er the South:
It reads of facts from every clime,
A faithful chronicler of time.

Its first care is our "Country Whole"—
But of all other climes above
The country of its heart and soul,
Is the bewitching "Land we Love;"
For oh, the soul is like the dove—
It cannot leave its first true love.

There's sorrow now in our dear land—
The sun will shine when clouds are gone;
And, if we but together stand,
The storm will be long before the dawn;
Then let us say with but one mouth,
Come weal or woe, hooo, the South!

He who now steers the Ship of State
Has proved a pilot good as true,
And Hail! all may threat and hate,
Yet he will not their bidding do;
But he will guide till tempest's ease,
And land us in the port of Peace.

Then, there's our sister, Mexico,
Without a compass now the floats;
Her people plunged in bloodiest woe,
And still they prey each other's throats:
The day—poor maid—how she is plores,
That brought her freedom in foreign stores!

She's like the fable of the cocks,
Who fought till they to ill were loth,
And then called it a wily fox
To settle matters for them both:
And so, if United States will go
To aid, alas! poor Mexico.

It is the o'd tale o'er again,
Only with different words it runs,
With nations as it is with men;
The big fish eats the little ones:
And say or do what'e'r you will,
It is the same old story still.

Although far from the sunny clime
Reclining, pealed its notes afar,
Placing her name on passing Time,
With threefold mark of bloody war;
It was Italy's battle blow,
Placing Venetia from the foe.

While we—once pride of all the free—
Be prostrated in sinful disgraceful strife,
Italia sings a jubilee,
And in her Union takes new life;
She gives peace sweet daughter's charms,
And folds Venetia to her arms.

And Prussia, too, has gained a prize,
And many a laurel she has won;
She humbled Austria's hood replies,
And erred her with the Needle gun—
At which all Europe stands and grins,
Forgiving Prussia all her sins.

Even Napoleon took a fit—
Confusion of the Needle gun—
Which put him that instrument to shun;
And so he backed out from the Rhine
At Prussia's sweet will—"Nolo contendere."

Britannia, proud old dame!
Still, shaking in her shoes;
Although she plucked away her flame—
Work in bed now with the blues—
Government has got so mean
Kills all those who wear "the green."

Old Ireland lifts again her head,
And from her center to the sea,
Shouts, by all who fought and bled,
The Harp and Shamrock shall be free;
And all her martyrs gone before,
Look down and bless her hapless shore.

Above the mountain and the crag,
And through the tempest, o'er the seas,
The bright green flag—gold ireland's flag—
Shall yet in triumph brave the breeze;
Where'er it waves, on land or sea,
An emblem of the brave and free.

In South America, far off,
A little nation fought and shed—
A people brave, who never doff
Their hats but to the Eternal God,
Against ten times their number stood,
And still their native land hold good.

Undaunted little Paraguay!
Freedom owes thee a living debt.
Which can be paid but in one way—
She must thy courage ne'er forget,
That others may be taught from thee,
They'll not be crushed with would be free!

Reader, farewell; the Carrier Boy
Has sung his matin song anew;
Through mud and snow, in grief or joy,
He brings the latest news to you;
Farewell! may happiness an choor
Be yours, throughout the coming year.

CARRIER BOY.

RIVER MATTERS.

Weather and Business.

The weather was more moderate yesterday than for several days. The morning opened with a heavy, hazy appearance, but cleared off before noon. Ice is floating past this city, but not very plenty. We look for it in larger quantities to-day.

Our river is yet slowly falling. There is no navigation in the Ohio, and the river from Cairo to St. Louis is entirely impassable. We give further particulars regarding the rivers in our miscellaneous matter.

Arrivals.

Steamer Antelope, St. Louis.
" Stonewall, Louisville.
" Sam. J. Hale, Cincinnati.
" Lizzie Gill, New Orleans.
" Lady Standes, Louisville.
" Mollie Hambleton, Pine Bluff.
" Lady.

Departures.

Steamer Antelope, Vicksburg.
" Stonewall, New Orleans.
" Cairo.
" [illegible] New Orleans.

Miscellaneous.

The well and favorite steamer Natoma arrived from [illegible] yesterday. She leaves again at 5 p.m. to-day on her return trip. Capt. Cummings is winning the title of "old reliable" while Wash Treanary is no sardine himself.

The North west, which left this pool a few days ago to wreck the sunken steamer Memphis in White river, got her barge over a snag at the mouth of the cut-off. The barge sunk with all the diving apparatus.

The Rose Hambleton arrived from Pine Bluff with 100 bales of cotton.

The Hesperian arrived on the river below this city who has several servants in her establishment, even tho' she was rudely treated by a certain Brig.-Gen. Vandover, of Iowa. This doughty warrior, we learn, has a piano in his parlor, which he confiscated for her residence. The old lady is full of energy, and we would give her name, only we fear it would be a breach of confidence between ourselves and Capt. Geo. O. Hart, of the The Vernon. She sees early—very early—in the morning, and long before the hours before day, she can be hear l at the doors of her servants' rooms, calling out, "You, Susan! little Jane! aunt Sophy! Maria! here, get up! this is Monday, to-morrow is Tuesday, next day is Wednesday—half the week gone and no work done yet!"

CURE FOR A BAD BAD COLD.—A poetical doctor who lived in 1430 gives the following cure which may be useful to our river men these times:

Put your nose in pot or pipe
As hot as your thighs,
Wrapp your head up a damaile
As close as your eyes,
Take a quart of rose and cruells,
When in bed, so a dose;
Wh n a sucker fair dippe
Well tallies your nose.

The Quickstep and Armada are yet having lots of fun, but making very little money in the lower Ohio. The latter boat has been passed squarely, by the former, under way, and now we hope the patrons along that stream will give the Pittsburg clipper a better show for their white-a-ps. They have not been friendly to the Quickstep heretofore.

We find the following in the Louisville Journal. It is important:

Mr. Sam Brown and Crane, Local Inspectors, Louisville, Ky.:

The following order has been received by the local inspectors of Louisville, from the supervising inspector of this district, and steamboat owners will therefore govern themselves accordingly:

"I have approved of no valve except the one being manufactured by Messrs. Ainslie, Cochrane & Co., called "America," and you will henceforth allow no other placed upon any boat in your jurisdiction, without any special permission.

"(Signed) "GUTHRIE.
"Supv. Insp. Sixth District."

What animals were admitted to the Gayoso house "hop" last night? D'ye give it up? Why, white kids, of course, Memphis Appeal.

We guess there were a few dears (deers) present, and any quantity of cuties. Louisville Democrat.

We have since learned that bucks of various ages were also present.

The Reindeer, winner of the yacht race from New York to Cowes, 23 hours and 58 minutes, which is extraordinary time. The best run made in one day was 280 miles, and the least run she made in one day was 113 miles. She made the entire passage across the ocean with but one tack, and did not lose even a rope. The Heartleta is everywhere looked upon as one of the best and fastest yachts that ever crossed the ocean, and is greatly admired by everybody.

We lately heard of an old woman who is collecting all the radical papers she can lay her hands on to make soap of. She says "they are a desperate sight better than ashes—they are most as good as clear lie."

The run of the Princess to Natches, in 1855, is dwelt upon to some extent in the Louisville Courier of the 24 inst. It was no doubt, an extraordinary run, being accomplished in 17 hours and 30 minutes, but the writer of the article in the Courier did not state all the facts. The Princess, it is true, was stripped for the race, but it was fired on the trip by men who had never looked into a furnace before the trip alluded to. A number of negroes belonging to Andrew Brown, of Natchez, had just taken a flatboat loaded with lumber, to New Orleans, and returned home on the Princess. They did the firing on the trip. With good firemen would she not have made a quicker run? The Courier of the 24 says: The river was falling fast yesterday, with 7 feet 9 inches water in the canal in the evening.

During the previous 24 hours it had fallen 1 foot at the head of the falls, and 3 feet at Portland. The weather continues very cold and was clear, though slightly moderating in the evening. The thermometer at noon ranging at 24.

On the falls there were but 5 feet 9 inches water last evening in the pass down the Indian chute, and the river fall of large masses of heavy floating ice. At times the river has the appearance of a sea of ice, and again it would drift away, leaving spaces of clear water for a few hundred yards, and then mingle again en masse.

Not a boat ventured out of port yesterday, though the lower river continues open, and the crews were reduced to two or three on each boat. All have concluded to suspend trips, at least for a few days, awaiting a moderation in the weather, an accumulation of freights and the dispersion of the ice.

We heard of but one arrival yesterday, the Millwell, we believe, from Memphis. She worked her way through the canal cocks to the basin, where she now lies in a snug harbor, frozen in hard and fast.

The trip of the Tarascon, the mail packet from Evansville and Henderson, yesterday, was suspended as being looked upon as extra hazardous.

Our St. Louis exchanges have not a word of river news in them, so we suppose they have laid up for the present.

The officers of the Stonewall and Sam. J. Hale report very heavy ice in the lower Ohio. The river is closed at Evansville and the Clifton will reship her cargo at that point. Everything in the way of steamboating is suspended at Louisville and Cincinnati, as well as at St. Louis. At the latter point the ferryboats made their trips with great difficulty.

Will S. Hays, of the Louisville Democrat set his organ grinding, upon and around out a very handsome dirge over the old year. He thus announces the birth in everybody's house on Tuesday last:

There is joy in the house, now the funerals' over,
"Come, gather around! Here's a basket, by Heliven!!"
"Loss hi!" "Let us see!"—it was found at the door—
"Oh! my! what a sweet litt e babe—sh!"

For PINE BLUFF.—The swift and handsome Friday packet Rose Hamblet on will leave our landing to-day at 5 p. m. Capt. John Claycomb is fast winning laurels in this trade with his new steamer as he did with the favorite Linnie Drown. Mr. D. M. Wells, a popular and clever gentleman, will be found on the Rose and will add by courtesy and kindness, much to the pleasures of a trip to Pine Bluff. Levy & Miller and Johnson & Wright, agents.

FOR CINCINNATI.—The fine steamer Norman will be in port to-day and load for Cincinnati. Capt. Everhart is in command and is a careful as well as gentlemanly officer. The Norman leaves at 5 p.m. promptly. Larry Harnstad & Co., agents.

FOR LOUISVILLE.—The mammoth packet Louisville, under the command of competent officers, will leave the Star wharfboat to-day as above. If any thing afloat can make the trip, the Louisville is that boat. She has splendid passenger accommodations. Johnson & Wright are her agents.

FOR WHITE RIVER.—The only packet for White river, and the one altogether desirable, is the Des Arc, with Capt Crawford on the roof. Lee Finney and Charlie Smithers are clerks. She leaves on Saturday from the Star wharfboat. Johnson & Wright, agents.

FOR ST. LOUIS.—To-morrow at 5 p.m. the Die Vernon will back out for every landing between this and Vicksburg, where she connects with the Robt. E. Lee for New Orleans. Capt. Frank Hicks commands, while Geo. O. Hart and George Dean will be found in the office. Larry Harnstad & Co., agents.

FOR NEW ORLEANS.—Capt. Ash Hopkins, in charge of the fine steamer T. L. McGill, will be in port to leave as above at 5 p.m. to-day. The McGill is an elegant passenger packet, and will do le to. Capt. Hopkins, who was so popular on the White Cloud, will be more so now that he has a No. 1 steamer. Johnson & Wright are agents.

FOR ARKANSAS RIVER.—The very comfortable and well-built passenger packet Celeste, with Capt. Reese Pritchard on the roof, will leave at 5 p.m. today for Helena, Pine Bluff and Little Rock. She has superior accomodations and will make quick time. Her clerks are No. 1 and will make you feel at home. Levy & Miller and Larry Harnstad & Co. agents.

FINANCIAL

OFFICE OF THE DAILY APPEAL,
MEMPHIS, January 4, 1867.

There was no activity in money circles to day, and no change to report. Gold was bought at our quotations of yesterday. The amounts offered are very small.

Silver is offered in very small lots, and brokers pay 24 to 25c for all presented.

City scrip is in light demand. Brokers have as much on hand as they require, and scarcity of currency precludes speculation. Buying at 60 to 66c and selling at 65 to 70c.

There are no transactions to report in government bonds. Money is too tight, and better rates are so easily attained elsewhere that government securities are not looked for.

There is little more demand for county warrants. There is no perceptible advance however. Brokers pay 90 to 92c and sell at 93 to 95c.

There is little demand for exchange. Banks will buy at ¼ off and sell at par to ¼ off.

VINETA.

Out of ocean's lowest depths are swelling
Chimes of evening bells, so faint and low;
Marvellous legends th-y are telling
Of that wondrous town of long ago.

In the lap of ocean deeply sunken,
'Neath the waves its ruins still remain;
Pinnacles and spires, with relics golden,
There, as in a mirror, shine again.

And the sailor, who that magic glimmer
Once hath seen 'neath the clear evening red,
Towards the selfsame bourne must steer forever,
Though the cliffs around are looming dread.

Out of the heart's inmost depths are swelling
Tones, like sweet bells chiming, faint and low;
Wondrous histories they are telling
Of the love it cherished long ago.

For a world of beauty there is hidden;
There the ruins ever must remain;
Oh, like golden sparks of fire from heaven,
Mirrored in my dreams they shine again.

And I fain into the deep would plunge me,
Lose myself in that mirage once more;
And, methinks, I hear the angel's call me
To that city wonderful of yore.

LOSS BY PORTLAND FIRE, JULY 4.

The total amount covered by the Ætna Policies on property destroyed or damaged is $300,000, on which salvage will be about five per cent. Our total loss will not exceed sixty thousand dollars, and was promptly adjusted and paid. This sum is five per cent. upon the company's assets, a loss not only fully exceeded in any government and State taxes paid this year, or a proportion equal to a $5000 loss for a company of $100,000 assets.

The necessity for insurance and the value of security strong corporations is forcibly illustrated by this fire. Several weak institutions are doubtless ere this, gone to the wall. Portland has a population of 30,000—was handsomely built in most part of brick or stone structures—protected and screened with upwards of 20 volume trees—bounded on three sides by water—indeed, literally, almost rising from the ocean—and with a fine fire department—yet it has $5,000,000 of property consumed in a few hours—upon a holiday when its people are least occupied—from the very insignificant cause of a contemptible fire cracker.

Remember the trifling origin of fires that sweep away in a few hours the earnings of years. Consider your best interest and give the Ætna Agent a call if you need proper insurance security. Pay a fair rate and secure for a good and genuine article and with these lights and experiences before you, insure your insurance with shrewd judgments.
